

OCTOBER 20, 2024

29th Sunday in Ordinary Time

ST. RITA CHURCH

Joyfully living and sharing the Gospel of Jesus, we welcome, worship, inspire, and serve with love.

From the Desk of Father Tim . . .

None of us should be surprised that St. Rita is off to an amazing start with our Catholic Ministries Appeal. As I write this, we are at 40% of our $146,000 goal. 122 households have participated already with an average gift of $478! Thank you to everyone who has participated early and so generously.

Over the past several years, the number of participating households has steadily decreased. This downturn has been balanced by an upturn in average gifts.

This year our goal is not only to successfully fulfill our responsibility to the CMA before Christmas, but also reverse the trend by increasing the number of participating households. Two CMAs ago, we had 471 participants. Last year we had 429. This year, our goal is to return to past levels and have 470 participating households.

There are several reasons why participation might have decreased in the past. Parishioners move away, they pass away, or they are no longer able to participate. So, we need everyone who can to participate. Even if it is a small donation, it will count towards our goal of 470 participating households.

As a small incentive, every household whose donation has been entered by that Friday will be entered into a drawing, with various wonderful prizes.

Next weekend, October 26th, the prize will be two tickets to the St. Rita School Meat Raffle that is on November 16th. You will have seats at our Staff table and a chance to bid on a very wide variety of meats. Bring a cooler to take home what you might win!

Thank you to everyone for your participation in the life of St. Rita Parish!

Yours in Christ,
Fr. Tim

WORLD MISSION SUNDAY

TODAY IS WORLD MISSION SUNDAY. We celebrate this day by remembering our baptismal call - to bring the Gospel to all! The second collection today for the Society of the Propagation of the Faith supports the work and witness of the Mission Church, as it provides for priests, religious and lay leaders who offer the Lord's mercy and concrete help to the most vulnerable communities in the Pope's missions.

Thank you for your generosity.

Reflections on Readings for the Twenty-Ninth Sunday in Ordinary Time

"For The Son Of Man Did Not Come To Be Served
 But To Serve And To Give His Life As A Ransom For Many"

Our three readings this Sunday give us three different views of the suffering servant - the one who will give his life as a substitutionary atonement for the sins of the people (our sins). The image of the blameless lamb that is sacrificed in atonement for sins is as old as Israel itself.

In our first reading (Isaiah 51:10-11), we hear an excerpt from Isaiah's fourth Song of the Suffering Servant. Reading this passage in light of the resurrection of Jesus, it is clear that to us Christians, Jesus is this "servant who shall justify many, and their guilt He shall bear."

In our Epistle reading (Hebrews 4:14-16), the author compares Jesus to the Jewish high priest who offered sacrifice once each year on the Day of Atonement or Yom Kippur. Because our "great high priest" gave His own body and blood as the sacrifice for the sins of the world (once, for all), we can approach Jesus with the confidence that He is able to "sympathize with our weakness."

In our Gospel reading (Mark 10:35-45), we hear the incredible request by James and John to share in Jesus' glory. Odd as that may seem, it was very much in keeping with the culture of the day. They expected a messiah that would ride triumphantly into Jerusalem as king and vanquish its enemies. His disciples would naturally take their places to the left and the right of His throne. Even after multiple warnings by Jesus of His impending passion and death, they just didn't understand. Jesus responded by asking them, "Can you drink the cup that I drink?" "We can", they readily replied. Little did they know that indeed they would.

Sometimes, like the apostles James and John, we may fail to understand the significance of the passion and death of Jesus for the atonement of our sins. Jesus indeed triumphed, but not in the way His disciples expected. Jesus triumphed over sin and death by rising from the dead after three days. Sometimes, we may act as if we haven't been saved, lacking the profound joy that salvation brings. Perhaps we can do better.

A BETTER KIND OF POLITICS

Civilize It

The Call to “a Better Kind of Politics”

What do we mean by “politics” and how can we make it better?

In his encyclical, Fratelli Tutti, Pope Francis urges Catholics and all people of good will to seek “a better kind of politics, one truly at the service of the common good” (no. 154).

But what does Pope Francis mean by a better kind politics? In order to unpack this phrase, we need to understand how the Church understands “politics.” Catholics in the United States might make an understandable assumption that “politics” refers to partisan activities that occur during election season, including efforts by political parties to promote one candidate over the other, or “parallel monologues” masquerading as dialogue on television (no. 200). These kinds of activities are not what Pope Francis is referring to when he urges us to “a better kind of politics.”

Rather, Pope Francis is referring to those activities through which we can bring the light of our faith to the public square in order to further integral human development, solidarity, justice and the common good. Our engagement can take a variety of forms.

Ongoing Engagement

Regularly participating in elections locally and nationally are important forms of political engagement that receive a lot of attention, but just as important (though less glamorous), are ongoing activities such as involvement in city council meetings or on school boards, knowing how and where funding is allocated in our community, understanding what issues most impact our neighborhoods, what cycles of poverty are working against our neighbors, and participating in processes that advocate for positive change.

These are all examples of how Catholics can practice what Pope Francis describes as “political charity.” He writes, “For whereas individuals can help others in need, when they join together in initiating social processes of fraternity and justice for all, they enter the ‘field of charity at its most vast, namely political charity.’ This entails working for a social and political order whose soul is social charity. Once more, I appeal for a renewed appreciation of politics as ‘a lofty vocation and one of the highest forms of charity, inasmuch as it seeks the common good’” (no. 180). When we participate in the above activities, we are engaging in politics appropriate to our call and responsibility as people of faith. Yet, as human beings, there may be times when our

“Once more, I appeal for a renewed appreciation of politics as ‘a lofty vocation and one of the highest forms of charity, inasmuch as it seeks the common good.”

- Pope Francis, Fratelli Tutti, no. 180

engagement does not reflect the charity to which we are called. For example, we may engage in personal attack or insult on social media, fail to seek the truth, or be afraid to critically examine positions of groups to which we may belong. We may fall into these activities as individuals, or we may observe these negative habits in the actions of our elected officials.

Engaging with Love

We must engage with charity and respect. We must break down walls and build the culture of encounter. In our communities, we must also engage with these principles in mind. We build “a better kind of politics” by identifying common values. We listen to understand. We seek the truth together. We pursue the common good through shared values, and we respond to the call “to sustain hope, to be a sign of unity... to build bridges, to break down walls, to sow seeds of reconciliation” (no. 276).

Each of us has a role to play in ensuring that our systems reflect a commitment to human dignity. The political process is not reserved solely for those who hold office or official positions. Authentic engagement can take many forms but is always rooted in our recognition of one another as beloved children of God. We have a responsibility to care for each another not just in words and thoughts, but in action. Working together towards that end means being engaged in the political process in ways that reflect these values: “The development of a global community of fraternity based on the practice of social friendship on the part of peoples and nations calls for a better kind of politics” (no. 154).

“Political charity is also expressed in a spirit of openness to everyone.”

- Pope Francis, Fratelli Tutti, no. 190

Gospel Call

As humans, we organize ourselves in families, in towns, and countries. The policies of each of these spheres express our values as a people. We put our Gospel call to love one another into action by advocating for policies that support the flourishing of all people. The means through which we engage and how we work with one another should also reflect our values. This is a better kind of politics.

How can we get started?
